PUBLIC OFFICE IS A PUBLIC TRUST

The Van Alen case in a nutshell is that VanAlen is nobody but a millionaire and a son-in-law of the Astor family; that he is merely a summer resident of the United States; that he contributed a very large sum of money to the Cleveland campaign fund, and that he has been appointed Ambassador of the American people to Italy.

These are the unquestionable facts. All the rest is immaterial. It is quite foolish for the parties to the affair to go on denying that they "made a bargain" with Van Alen.

All of us know how these things are done. When you sell yourself to the devil on the stage, you open a vein in your arm and write the signature in blood to the flashing of red fire and the noise of tin thunder. But when that sort of thing is done off the stage, there is hardly an implication. It is the vaguest sort of an "understanding between gentlemen," but in the end it is sufficiently binding.

A nod and a wink are enough in politics, and among the very finest workers even the nod and wink are dispensed with. We do not believe that Whitney either nodded or winked to get this money out of Van Alen, and there is not money enough in the country to make us believe that Mr. Cleveland promised the mission in exchange for the money.

What is the use of talking such foolishness as that? Here is the fact that this mere millionaire, a nobody whose only claim to residence in America is the ownership of a summer house in Newport, a man whom no one except a few plutocrats knew—has been appointed to one of the highest offices in the gift of the American people after contributing a large sum to the Cleveland campaign fund.

That is enough to know. Reject him. Repudiate the transaction. "Public office is a public trust."—St. Louis Chronicle.

A Cruel Blow.

Great Britain struck another cruel blow at the industrial prosperity of the world by closing the mints of India to the free coinage of silver. Her object is to kill off the free coinage of silver in the United States and to accomplish the financial conquest of the world. Will any self-respecting American citizen follow her in her effort to rob mankind? The people are now forced to decide which flag they will follow, the stars and stripes, or cross of St. George. Let us now establish our system of finance in harmony with republican institutions, throw off the British yoke the second time and issue a second declaration of independence.—J. B. Weaver.

THE TWO MILLS'.

Mr. Mills' Silver Speech in 1886.

Would you take the country again through the valley of the shadow of death? Would you repeat again that experience so full of lamentations and mourning and woes? If you would, listen to the soft, sweet notes of the siren as she sings from the vaults of the national banks about dishonest dollars. Drive out into banishment the old silver dollar of our fathers; call in the silver certificates; retire all the Treasury notes; make money so scarce that the poor bankers in New York can buy a bushel of wheat for a dime; a pound of cotton for a penny; make it impossible for people to pay their debts; make labor so cheap that working people can only earn money enough to pay interest to money lenders and taxes to support the government, and you will see again the return of that night with all its horrors intensified.

Mr. Mills' Silver Speech in 1893.

But, Mr. President, I want to know if the mints are open and the silver miners bring their bullion to the mints and have it coined and given back to them how the people of Texas are going to get any of it? They are a people of whom I am very fond. They have been very kind to me for a lifetime. I have been living with them ever since I was a boy. I have fought and bled and almost died with them, and I want to know where they come in? When some one from Colorado or Nevada brings a hundred millions of silver bullion and has it coined he may be benefitted and if the gold standard is retained he will have 57 cents worth of silver made worth 100 cents. And this for Colorado and Nevada is a good thing, but I want to know where Texas comes in?

Property Right In Railroad Tickets.

The Texas "anti scalper" law which some of the rail roads propose to have passed in other states makes it a penal offense for the owner of a rail road ticket to sell it. That is nonsense. A rail road ticket is property, if a rail road bond is and the holder of a rail road ticket who has paid for it in lawful money has as much right to sell it as he has to sell any other species of property—rail road stocks and bonds or real estate or anything else.

If the State can rightly abolish property right in a rail road ticket it can abolish it in everything.

When a man has worked and earned possession of anything he can hold without crime, what he has thus received in exchange for his free labor, represents his free labor, and if it can be taken from him, or if he can be punished for selling it he is enslaved, and the value of his freedom as a laborer is taken from him.

It does seem that there are men in the rail road offices who ought to know this. It is very foolish in them to attempt to have property rights abolished or to deny title in anything labor has fairly earned.

If the state has the right to enact this ticket law, making it criminal for the holder of such property as this to sell it to whom he pleases, it has by the same rule the right to confiscate every rail road within its jurisdiction.—St Louis Chronicle

The Drummer's Prayer.

Our landlord who art at the head of the table—

We hallow thy name. Thy beefsteak come, let it be done, but not as it was for breakfast. Give us this day some better hash and forgive us when we kick against it as we forgive those who kick against us.

Lead us no more into un clean and buggy rooms

But deliver us from dirty towels and roaches, and thine will be the glory, and the three dollars per day with thy days be done forever, and ever, the victim, the drummer.

A Center Lick.

Congressman Bryan strikes the nail squarely when he says: There are two classes of gold bugs, one for what there is in it and the other on account of ignorance. The first cannot be helped, the others are to be pittied.—Ex.

Bank Examiner—"Pardon me, sir; but you seem to have misunderstood me."

"Oh! Well, perhaps I did. I've been a little deaf for a good many years."

"What I said was that your cashier left only twenty-five cents in the safe. He stole all the rest."

"Great Caesar! I must see him at once and try to get him to compromise the matter."—Philadelphia Call.

His Reasons.

"No," remarked the young man, with a touch of sadness in his voice. "It may be that some day happiness will be mine, but at present it is beyond me. There is a girl whom I love dearly. She would have me if I only asked her, but I dare not. I really cannot marry and live on six thousand a year."

His two friends, to whom he spoke, looked at him in wonder. For a moment they were speechless—consternation and pity depicted on their youthful countenances. But presently speech returned to them, exactly at the same time, and they fairly howled in their excitement:

"You cannot marry on six thousand a year! Why not? echoed the youth with the sad voice, which grew still sadder.

"Why, simply because I havn't got the six thousand."

And the mystery was explained.—Brooklyn Life.

What Killed The Parrot.

The man was walking along Woodward avenue carrying a parrot in a cage.

"What you got there?" asked a friend.

"Parrot; I'm taking it home to my wife. She has always wanted one."

'I hope you will have better luck than I did with one I gave to my wife."

"What happened to it?"

"You don't know my wife do you?"

"No."

"Neither did the parrot It wanted to talk during the day time and couldn't get a chance while my wife was around, so it staid awake at night to do its talking and the poor thing died of insomnia in two weeks"—Detroit Free Press.

The Eloquent Bryan!

"I want to Promise You that I Will go Out

And Serve my Country and my God Under Some Other Name, if I go Alone."

Probably no man in the great north-west has so ably and eloquently defended the democratic flag as Congressman Bryan of Nebraska. In the late democratic convention in that state he was repudiated. We clip the following partial report from the convention proceedings:

LINCOLN, Neb., October 5.—The first business when the Democratic State Convention reconvened last night at 10 o'clock was the report of the Committee on Resolutions.

The platform opened with a greeting to President Cleveland and with a renewed expression of confidence and pride in his patriotism; courage and wisdom. It then continued with this reference to the financial situation:

We heartily indorse the administration of president Cleveland; we reaffirm the truths so forcibly set forth by the President in his message to the special session of Congress; we favor his recommendation to Congress therein made for the repeal of the silver-purchase clause of the Sherman act, and we call upon the United States Senators to speedily pass the pending bill for the prompt and unconditional repeal of that vicious law.

A minority report was also read on the money question, favoring the free coinage of silver upon a ratio with gold that would make the dollars of equal value.

A motion was made to substitute this plank for the one quoted above, and then there were loud cries for Congressman Bryan, who came upon the platform and delivered the most thrilling and pungent political address ever given to a Nebraska audience. It thoroughly electrified his adherents and set them wild with enthusiasm. Bryan, in speaking of the efforts of the majority of the convention to sit down upon him, said:

"So far as I am personally concerned it matters not this to me (snapping his fingers) whether you vote this amendment up or down; it matters not to me whether you pass this resolution censuring my course or indorsing it: and if I am wrong in these positions I have taken I will fall, though you heap your praises upon me; if I am right in the position I have taken—and in my heart, so help me God, I believe I am (applause)—if I am right I will triumph yet, although you downed me a hundred times. [Applause.] Gentlemen of this convention, satisfied with what I have done, you are playing in the basement of politics. Why, you think you can pass resolutions censuring a man and that you can humiliate him; I want to tell you that I am exiled with no more joy than the delegates who come here and drown their sentiments for fear they will not get an office. Gentlemen, if you gentlemen represent your constituents in what you have done and will do, because I do not entertain the fond hope that any of you men who have voted as you have to-day will change it upon this vote, I have no such idea, but I want to say to you that if the delegates who came here properly reflect the sentiments of the democratic party, which sent them here, if the resolutions which you have proposed here and which you will adopt, if they reflect the sentiments of the democratic party of this state and this party declares in favor of a gold standard, as it will if it passes this resolution, you declare in favor of the impoverishment of the people of Nebraska, and you intend to make more galling than the slavery of the black, the slavery of the debtors of this country; if the democratic party after you go home indorses your action and this becomes your sentiment, I want to promise you that I will go out and serve my country and my God under some other name, if I go alone." [Applause. Voice from convention: "The people of Nebraska will take care of you, Mr. Bryan."]

PUBLIC SCHOOL.

A Democrat Reporter visits the Various departments of the City Public School.

TEACHERS, PUPILS AND BUILDING.

Thinking a visit to the public schools of McKinney would be profitable, your reporter wended his way to the magnificent brick building in which Superintendent Smith and his able corps of teachers are engaged in training the future citizens of McKinney.

We were met at the entrance by the genial city superintendent who ushered us into his office and gave us a brief insight into the work of the several departments, prepartory to our visit. He first conducted us to the primary department, where the efficient Miss Walker was hearing a reading class. Eagerness was depicted upon every countenance; and we thought of the contrast between this class of work and the manner of conducting classes in the pioneer days, when the only incentive to study was the huge bundle of hickories held under the owl-like school teacher's arm.

Our next visit was in Miss Mofford's department. Here we found a most pleasant lady, conducting a most interesting recitation in numbers. The little people in her room were busy as bees, the lesson was well prepared, the teacher seemed perfectly at home and we predict a most successful result from her labor. We consider her one of the best teachers of the school.

Miss Trent is doing excellent work in her grade. She was conducting a recitation in reading and her pupils acquitted themselves well. She has a very interesting grade of pupils.

Miss Houston was the next teacher to visit. Here we found a wide awake teacher and studious pupils. The work is well done and advancement is the watchword.

We next visited Miss Duer's room. No praise of Miss Lizzie is necessary, as her prolonged stay in the McKinney schools will testify. She has vim, energy, system, and is a "rustler" in every sense of the term. Her pupils are doing the best of work.

Miss Edwards, the teacher in the next grade, has the faculty of holding the attention of her class, making the recitation interesting, and preserving order in the room, all at the same time. Her work is most thoroughly done and her teaching power is of the higher degree.

Miss May Allen is one of the kindest of teachers to her pupils, and they all fairly idolize her, which fact speaks volumes for her, as a teacher. She is strict, yet kind; gentle, yet firm, and is a typical teacher.

When we passed into the room presided over by Prof. Cousins, our face was unavoidably covered with blushes. Our extreme youth, the dignity of the teacher, the intelligent faces of the young gentlemen and the beautiful ladies were the causes to which these blushes might be traced. This grade is composed of ladies and gentlemen who are there to work and who know the value of time. Their teacher is a most able educator.

McKinney may well be proud of her teachers from superintendent to primary teachers. They are pursuing the latest methods of instrucion, are teachers not only well prepared for their work, but are ladies and gentlemen of high culture and intellectual attainments. All that is necessary to make this a most successful term of school is the hearty cooperation of the patrons. We hope this will be given the teachers. Patrons should visit the schools, and see how the work of training their children is conducted. You will surely be more able to judge of the teacher's ability and you will decide that your visit has been time profitably spent, as it has been to an OBSERVER.

Mistaken Identity.

We are seriously alarmed about Bro. Thompson of the McKinney Democrat. As he seems to see it he is shipwrecked on the "Isle of hard times" while the vessel "Democracy" sails away leaving him with only one shirt and no prospect of another for years. This is very sad. But we observe that he has been playing dude to a party of fellow townsmen on a recent trip to the world's fair and how he managed on one shirt we don't know. We hope that lack of apparel didn't mar the pleasure of the trip.—Rockport Beacon.

You are hereby informed that the "dude" was played by Clint Thompson, of the McKinney Gazette, and not by this chap.

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better than any other. We will tell you. When this Remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen it's severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. It act in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions, liquefyin the mucus and causing its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs and restoring the system to a strong healthy condition. No other remedy in the market possesses these remarkable properties. No other will cure a cold so quickly. For sale by R. E. Bristol

A NARROW ESCAPE!

How it Happened.

The following remarkable event in a lady's life will interest the reader: "For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which flattered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought every minute would be my last. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I couldn't sweep a room without sitting down and resting; but, thank God, by the help of New Heart Cure all that is past and I feel like another woman. Before using the New Heart Cure I had taken different so-called remedies and been treated by doctors without any benefit until I was both discouraged and disgusted. My husband bought me a bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and am happy to say I never regretted it, as I now have a splendid appetite and sleep well. I weighed 125 pounds when I began taking the remedy, and now I weigh 130 lbs. Its effect in my case has been truly marvelous. It far surpasses any other medicine I have ever taken or any benefit I ever received from physicians."—Mrs. Harry Starr, Pottsville, Pa., October 12, 1892.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. This great discovery by an eminent specialist in heart disease, contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

Sold by all Druggists.

A few evenings ago a DEMOCRAT reporter noticed a loud talking drunk man on the east side of the square. A lady came along and upon noticing her the drunk man immediately hushed and tried to hide. Woman's influence? Heaven bless her! Even a drunk man is silenced and made to respect her presence.

C, A. McMeans will speak at Josephine on the night of the 17 inst.

There is more cotton on the square to-day than has been here at any one day this fall. A row of wagons reaches from the scales near the depot to the square which is also crowded. It is a quarter of a mile from square to scales.

A cotton yard at Josephine was set on fire yesterday by a passing engine. One hundred and fifty bales were destroyed.

In our next issue will appear a most interesting communication from our little friend, Miss Jennie Scott Wilson, describing a visit to the Lick Observatory in California.

A difficulty occuried on the south east corner of square this morning. Wood McDonald struck the boy who is running the peanut stand. John Griffin, a brother-in-law of the boy, interrupted when McDonald pulled a pistol and took after Griffin. No one was seriously hurt. McDonald was placed under arrest. We are not advised as to the court charge.

The town kids continue on the war path. The other evening, about fifteen of them were engaged in throwing rocks at two country boys whom they hemmed up. Some day these dishonorable "upstarts" will be caught in the country and flailed to a finish by the country boys. If parents do not control these kids the officers should.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a specific for croup. It is very pleasant to take, which is one of the most important requisites where a cough remedy is intended for use children. I have known of cases of croup where I know the life of a little one was saved by the use of Chamberlain's Cough remedy." J. J. LaGrange druggist, Avoca, Neb. 50 cent bottles for sale by R. E. Bristol.

Last Sunday morning quite a sensation was created near Fayburg, this county, by the report that a young man had attempted a criminal assault on a married lady, both of that community. The young fellow had went to the lady's house about 2 o'clock Sunday morning while her husband was sitting up with a sick neighbor. The intruder met with a strong resistance from the woman and was drove away. He eluded the officers. It was reported that he started to Farmersville to give himself up to the authorities but afterwards changed his notions and left the country. At present writing he is not to be found.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. there is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearin. and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearidg will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One hundred Dollars for any case of Deafnes (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

COTTON PATCH TRAGEDY.

A Fight With a Fatal Ending and Throat-Cutting Trimmings.

R. B. Hardin and a man by the name of Boyd fought in a cotton patch thirteen miles west of McKinney at 10 o'clock last Friday morning. Boyd's throat was cut and he died in a few minutes. Hardin was arrested by Constable Horn and brought to McKinney and jailed.

The prisoner was seen by a Democrat reporter, but he refused to make a statement, having been instructed by his attorneys to keep "mum." He said that he was 21 years old, was born and raised in Robertson county, Texas, and had recently came to this county from Grayson. At the time of the killing he was picking cotton with the deceased on the Emerson farm west of McKinney. The deceased was about 35 years old, a widower and had two children. Further particulars of the killing could not be reliably learned. The prisoner has a fresh bruised place on his forehead.

Cost of Ginning and Cotton Seed.

MCKINNEY, Collin Co., Tex., Oct. 10.—Knowing the willingness of the News to expose any injustice done the farmers, permit me to state that there is manifest injustice on the part of ginners in the vicinity of McKinney. They allow the cotton raiser but sixty pounds of seed to the 100 pounds of cotton. All cotton raisers know that if ther cotton turns out one third of its weight in lint cotton it turns out well. Cotton does not do this all the time. About 30 or 32 pounds of lint to the 100 of cotton is about the average. Well, the balance of the weight would be seed, save a small part blown out as motes. This would leave about sixty five or sixty-six pounds of seed that the raiser is entitled to. Messrs James Hill and Lou Scott, ginners at Melissa, give sixty-four pounds of seed to the 100 pounds of cotton, so does Barnett, at Blue Ridge, and the ginner at Lebanon in this county; but the ginners in and around McKinney give but sixty pounds.

I have talked to a half dozen of them and they all say that it is customary to give sixty pounds, which leads me to think they have an understanding with one another. The ginners in and around McKinney have ginned about 3500 bales up to this time and 2 1-5 bushels out of each bale would amount to over 8000 bushels of seed they have unjustly taken from the farmers.

T. B. WILSON.

A Tragic Death.

Walter Maple, a brakeman on the Houston and Texas Central railroad, met death at 2 o'clock last Saturday morning. One foot became fast between the guard and main rail at the north end of the switch at this place, and three cars of the north-bound freight ran over his body, cutting it to pieces. His liver and kidneys were found several feet away from the track. The victim was about 21 years of age. His parents reside in Fort Worth.

Farmers, when in the city give them a call.

From California to Arizona via Sonora.

[FOR THE DEMOCRAT—W. H. WATERMAN.]

It was in the year 1876 when the survey was run through Arizona for the Southern Pacific railroad and a great many families were moving there to secure homes, and there was so much advertizing of fine lands, which left an impression on the people's minds that they could go there and scoop up the gold and silver by the sackfull. It was true that there was plenty of rich ore but it took money and some of the hardest of work to get it out of the mountains and most of them had to grind the ore in rasters by horse power, it was rock grind rock, very slow work indeed. The stamp mills were scarce and no railroads to carry the ore to them. It was the 4th of march when our story began, a party of eleven started from Elunard, Solano Co. Our route was down the coast to San Diego, thence to Sonora, then back up into Arizona, touching Arizona first at Ft. Yuma, the hottest place man ever seen. We crossed the Sacramento river at Ft. Benicia, on the ferry boat, Rosa Ella. The fort is a noted place, for it is the oldest fort on the western coast. It is a grand sight to be on the opposite side of the river. The garrision is on the side of a hill. There are four rows of cannons, one above the other, and between each cannon there is a blue gum tree. Below and above each row of gums there is a fine growth of lawn grass with walks passing through it and a profusion of flowers growing along the walks which are kept in first-class order by the best of gardeners. The town of Benecia is off to the west facing the San Pablo bay, which is some three miles distant. This is where the cars on the C. P. crosses the river, the distance across is two miles. It takes them 20 minutes to move from one slip to the other. There is one of the finest ferry boats here that floats, she will carry 48 freight cars and two engines. A person in a passenger coach would not know that they were crossing the river if they were not told or did not get off the car for the train passes into a large building, then on the boat, and one can only see the river when they go to the end of the boat. They canot feel any jar as the boat runs so smooth.

After we crossed the river we traveled south along the western spurs of Mt. Diablo. Most of the day's journey was along Walnut creek. It was grand scenery and the rippling noise from the stream causing a person to feel like they were in some far off, wild land where there were no inhabitants. The next day we came to San Jose, one of the most beautiful towns on the coast.

We stopped over in San Jose a few days, for our teams to recruit up, and then started for Los Angeles, nearly 500 miles, distant. We passed through some of the finest country in the west. Quail, squirrels and deer were plentiful. This section of country contains mostly cattle and sheep, also olive orchards. The first orchard we came to we discovered cherries and over the fence we climed to obtain some to eat. We never tried them but the one time for bitter was no name. Our mouths were in a good shape for whistling soon after we crushed the berry between out teeth. The next surprise was garlic, supposing that we had found an onion patch, we were in for having some for supper, so like all kids, we gathered our arms full and never knew that they were anything else until we had arrived in camp, then we were ordered to carry them out of camp as quick as possible and we were in luck not to get a lashing from the old folks, for going in the garden and another one for carrying them to camp. This cured us from entering other people's orchards and gardens.

We were about three weeks making the trip from San Jose to Los Angeles, there was an old mission (Old San Juan.) It was a sight—the old thing had gone to ruin years ago, the portion containing the bells (seven in number) still remained standing. We spent two nights and a day there, inspecting the old mission. There were tunnels leading all through the basement of the building. What they were used for we never learned. The walls and floors were cement and polished as slick as glass. In one corner of the basement was a very large tank, it was 6 feet deep and 16 or 18 feet square, and steps going down in it from two of the tunnels. The building was made of what they call dobie. They mix straw and grass in mud, make brick 12x18 inches and 6 inches thick.

The second morning we traveled on toward Los Angelos, arriving there three days later. every yard was like a garden, we had never seen such a pretty place, we thought, but it was only a fertile spot in a desert, a person might say, for on the east was the Colorado desert, on the north the Mojava desert, on the west the ocean; there was a narrow strip south that was fine, this strip went by the name of Gospel Swamp. Every farmer had one or two artesian wells, for they got a good flow of water by going from 80 to 125 feet. We spent ten days out in the country south of the city, and had plenty of sport, fishing and hunting. Quail we cared nothing for at the time, for we found plenty of them on the road. After our horses had got in good trim again we pushed on towards San Diego, traveling along the beach most of the time, and when camping time came all of the young folks would go fishing, and many a nice sea fish fell a victim. We were three weeks from Los Angelos to old San Diego, which is three miles from the new town The old town was a total wreck. It looked like a cyclone had swept things; there were a few Mexicans living around the edge of the town but they were of the lowest class. They lived mostly on what they stole from others. We did not stop long there as water and feed was scarce. We then took an easterly course, toward the San Diego mountains; we camped at the foot of the mountains the firts night. Here was the finest bee country in the world. Every few miles we would come upon a bee town, and they did look like towns; as there were blooms the year round, in the mountains, the bees never stopped their labor. We were two days crossing the range, camping the second night at the Coyote spring at the edge of the Colorado desert; here we remained until the third night, as we had to travel after night, the heat being so great during the day. We had to take turns walking in front of the teams to find the road as there had been a sand storm the day before and we had only the trail of the mail hack to follow. The second morning about three o'clock we came to a large lagoon. Were then within 5 miles of the Colorado river, so here we camped for there was plenty of guyette grass and water and thought we would pull down on the river in the afternoon. Everything went on nicely until about 12 o'clock when in the north there looked to be a white sheet hung across the desert; it was a sand storm coming. There were some fifty Indians camped there and they informed us that there was going to be a hard sand storm; it came up at 1 o'clock. The like we had never witnessed before. When it passed away the sand had settled to the depth of 2 1-2 feet. It made hard traveling but we made it to the river, crossed and camped in Sonora, 28 miles below Ft. Yuma; here we found plenty of grass for our horses and we camped a week and spent our time hunting deer and antelope, and ofttimes make a run on the fish, for the stream was alive with them.

After leaving the river bottom three miles to the west it was nothing but sand, sage brush and grease wood. On the east two miles would carry you to the foot of the sand hills. There were mesquite trees, cactus, ocatea, cat-claw, palaverda, prickly-pear and ironwood. We had a very nice trip up the bottoms to the fort, but when we got to the sand hills at the fort the sun came down the shortest way. We camped in an old wagon yard where the soldiers had camped often and started a fire for supper. The fire had been burning about half an hour when there was a heavy, dull report and the fire was scattered everywhere, setting the tent and one of the wagons on fire. We wasn't long in putting the fire out, but we were careful not to build a fire on the ground again before we scraped it clean, the soldiers had lost a cartridge of the needle gun make which was three inches long and we had made the fire over it, there wasn't a piece of fire left.

From Yuma we traveled east, but before starting we had to buy two barrels and secure them to the side of the large wagon to carry water in. We found water every eight or ten miles until we got to Gila bend. The third evening after we left the fort we camped on the Oatman flat. Part of my readers have read of the Oatman family, how they were killed. The Indians kept two little girls, one four years old and one ten. The little boy eight years old was taken to a cliff and thrown over, falling about seventy-five feet among the rocks and brush, they supposed he was killed, but he was not. He was left in a bad shape, a leg and arm broken and three or four ribs stove in. After the Indians left, the little fellow crawled half a mile, to the river and was found by an old friendly Pimo Indian that was scouting for the soldiers that was camped 50 miles up the Gila river. The old Indian dressed the boys wounds the best he could, fixed a little tepe near the water, killed a deer and cooked some meat for the boy, then he told the little fellow he was going after the soldiers up the river. The Indian was in the soldiers camp before daybreak next morning and the soldiers started off double-quick time to the flat. They found the boy in good spirits and doing well, but the Indians and little girls they could not find. They found them six or eight months later, but only one girl, the least one would not eat, and shortly died—died in her older sisters arms and calling for mama. The sister dug the grave with her own little hands to bury the little one in (the Indians buried their dead on scaffolds.) Are there any little readers of this, brave enough to face what that little girl did?

We went to see the graves of the ones that was killed and took a look over the cliff where the little boy was thrown over.

Next day we made it to the Gila bend, a distance of fifteen miles, then from there to Maricopa was 35 miles to drive without water, and that we decided to make after night, as it was mostly among the sand hills and would be very hot, so the second evening we made a start, drove all night and arrived at the wells an hour after sun up. Here was a scare, the Indians were dead and dying everywhere with small pox. So all day the camp was guarded to keep the Indians away. When an Indian hove in sight there was a rifle leveled on him and he was ordered to depart. That night we started to Salt river, a distance of 30 miles, and no water between the two places. As the teams were fagged and the sand deep we could not travel as fast as we did the night before, so it was the middle of the forenoon before we came to the river. If there wasn't a tired set when we stopped, "and thats no lie," the horses were so near played out that they would scarcely move around to get grass. We spent two days there and they were the quietest days we spent on the trip. We had 45 miles to make, then we were at the end of our journey. We traveled 25 miles up the Salt river and camped at an old Station stand. The next day we took in Fort McDowell, and the evening found us at the end of our journey, on the Verda river. Now I leave it with you and bid you adieu.

THE S.S.S. CURE

"For eighteen months I had an eating sore on my tongue. I was treated by best local physicians, but obtained no relief; the sore gradually grew worse. I finally took S. S. S., and was entirely cured after using a few bottles."

The democrats want to raise 350 million dollars by a revenue tariff; the republicans would raise the same amount by a protective tariff. Take your choice.—Coming Crisis.

Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls, speaking of the financial and business troubles, says:

"The factories are idle, the country is filled with the unemployed, and the country is in a condition like that following the track of a devastating cyclone. We are told that the cause is overproduction; that the reason why there is so much hunger is that there is so much food; that there are barefooted children because there are too many shoes. Then we are told that it is loss of confidence. Loss of confidence? * * * Is it want of confidence in the integrity of man or the beneficence of God? Not that. It is the conspiracy on the part of the Shylocks of Wall Street and brigands of finance who have no other politics, no other religion, except the spoilation of the laboring class and the confiscation of the property of mankind."

Speaking of the fluctuation of paper money, Senator Mills says: "This is the treacherous working of a degraded standard of value." Can this be the same Mills who, in 1878, addressed the Greenback club at Waco? Can this be the same Roger that, at Marlin, Coke pulled out of the greenback party by the slack of his breeches? We grieve to say in response to the above questions that this present goldbug of 1893 is the whilom greenbacker of 1878, drunk on the applause of New England for his efforts to get hides and wool on the free list.—Waco News.

There is no more reasons why the nation should protect the silver kings than the cotton, wheat, cattle and lumber kings. All should have an equal show at the public crib.—Dallas News.

Yes, but what about the gold kings? you don't mention them! How much do you get for leaving them out?—Jimplecute.

Cleveland, Mills and that stripe of democracy are perfectly willing to admit raw material free, but the dear manufacturer must have protection. Mills told some of them, they were 5 per cent better off under his bill than under republican regulation. The producer must compete with foreigners—but not the dear capitalist.—Texas Farmer.

WHAT IS OPPRESSION?

The Answer Is Found In the Condition of This Country's Producers.

Oppression of one's own people never comes with the mailed hand of force, but with the cunning smile of the trickster. The people are amused and flattered while the schemers deprive them of property and then use them as servants and slaves. If a law were put upon the statutes of any state or nation that the producers should not leave their county or state, should wear a certain grade of clothing, live in a certain class of houses and feed upon a certain grade of food, the people would revolt and tear down the oppressors.

They could read that law and would realize its import. If the law said they should work for such wages as their employers might decide, they would revolt. But the invisible money power knows this. This power studies human nature. It proceeds to blarny the people about their great country, its wonderful freedom, how much better off they are than the oppressed and barbarians of other countries. They put in their heads strong words of how they love the independent farmer, the honest laboring masses, the yeomanry and bulwark of a nation. They flatter and cajole with such lies as "honest money," "protection to home labor," "labor is honorable," while they proceed to enact laws making dishonest money, protect capital, not labor, and spurn honest labor as they would a pest.

They create conditions that so impoverish the producers of wealth that they never get money enough ahead to leave their county or state, that they do have to wear a certain grade of shoddy clothes, that they do have to live in shanties or tenement hells, that they do have to be satisfied with the poorest food, that they do have to take just what those who can use their labor are willing to pay—and go around and beg, humiliatingly, to be accepted on those terms. These facts are so self evident that they go without saying. You see it is not necessary to always make laws to oppress, to get the labor of others without doing any labor yourself, but it is necessary to prevent proper laws from being enacted or enforced, that will protect those who are weak and ignorant. The laws of omission are as oppressive as laws of commission. And thus the people of the United States are oppressed.

At the close of the late war the people were prosperous, happy and out of debt. It was so stated by the great men of the times, and those old enough know it was true. But by laws of commission, laws giving special privileges and laws of omission—laws that could have protected the masses—our people are hopelessly in debt. Nine million homes have mortgages on him, all municipalities have piled up debts, all corporations have heaped up mountains of watered debts for the people to pay interest on, and we find the nation today on the verge of some great social cataclysm. This is oppression. No people ever had such burdens put on them, for no other people ever had such productive powers and resources.

We find the wealth that belonged to the millions a few years ago now belongs to the millionaires, and the people are poor indeed. This is all any tyrant ever wanted—the people to work while he feasted. No nation in the history of the past was ever reduced to such dependence in so short a time. This is because the people have been partisan. Wisdom weighs, considers, knows. No wise man was ever a bigot or an oppressor. If the reader loves his family, loves his country, loves his freedom, I beg him, even with tears, to think, to investigate, to know.

The principles of just government are as knowable, are as certain, as mathematics. When you investigate, you will see it. It is founded upon justice, upon the teachings of the lowly Jesus, and it cannot err. None of us asks you to accept it until you know, feel it is right. Is that not fair? Only by investigating can you know. Ignorance has brought you misery and woe. Knowledge will bring you peace and joy.—Coming Nation.

What Party Did It?

Some time ago the prosperity cranks said the Populist party had caused the closing of a tobacco warehouse at Henderson. On Aug. 18 all the warehouses closed at Durham indefinitely. Only one of them was an Alliance warehouse. Now we rise up to ask the poor partisan blockheads what party closed all the warehouses at Durham and other places? What party closed all the tobacco factories in some towns? What party closed 30 out of 35 tobacco factories in Winston? What party closed over one-third of all the factories in the United States and started the other two-thirds to working on half and one-third time? What party caused all the big railroads to discharge half of their employees? What party closed nearly 400 banks in the past six weeks? What party closed 10,000 large places of business of all kinds in the past eight months? Poor partisan fools, we are afraid you can't tell. You don't know the difference between a hog and the president's message. All you know is that lying pays until you get caught up with, and you are caught now. Poor partisan imbeciles, we pity you. The Republican and Democratic party twins did the work.—Progressive Farmer.

Changing Diseases.

In that delightful book, "Rid der Grange," the husband of Pomona gives as his reason for not removing from a malarial neighborhood, that it don't do for a man at his time of life to go about changing his diseases and adding, that there are diseases incident to almost every locality, and he likes a disease he is used to.

Now, in case of malarial diseases, aside from the unwillingness of patients to "change diseases," it is generally not convenient to change their residences. If this were done in every case, some of our most thriving communities would be depopulated.

Nothing is left to do therefore but to fortify oneself against malarial influences. For this purpose Drs. Starkey & Palen's Compound Oxygen has proved itself in the past 23 years the most efficient thing in the world.

Any person desiring to change diseases for health should write to us a plain statement of their case, when, if possible, the way will be pointed out. The consultation is without charge. Address Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1529 Arch Street Philadelphia, San Francisco or New York, and Toronto, Ont.
